Santa Barbara Audubon Society's 2007 CHRISTMAS BIRD COUNT SATURDAY, JANUARY 5, 2008 by Joan Lentz

Please come help us count the birds during Santa Barbara Audubon Society's annual Christmas Bird Count to be held SATURDAY, JANUARY 5, 2008! Every year, this wonderful effort on the part of over 170 local and out-of-town birders keeps Santa Barbara in the top five Christmas Counts in the United States in number of species sighted!

On the evening of Count Day, please join us at the compilation dinner at the Santa Barbara Museum of Natural History in Fleischmann Auditorium. The potluck dinner begins promptly at 6:00 p.m. and the compilation countdown at 7:00 p.m. Please bring your favorite salad, main dish, or dessert to share. If your group includes out-of-towners, they may contribute drinks, bread, chips, etc. Please bring your own service.

This year's count compiler will be Joan Lentz, assisted by the wonderful CBC committee. Joan Murdoch has graciously agreed to take participants' sign-ups. PLEASE CALL OR E-MAIL JOAN MURDOCH TO SIGN-UP. Joan is at jrmurdoch@cox.net or you can call her at 969-5132.

Before the count, you can help us by scouting your neighborhood or anywhere else within the Count Circle for the following interesting or unusual birds:

Cattle Egret	Any owls	Black-throated Gray Warbler
Blue-winged Teal	other than Great Horned	Yellow Warbler
Greater Scaup	White-throated Swift	Hermit Warbler
Mountain Quail	Any non-Anna's Hummingbirds	Wilson's Warbler
Common Moorhen	Sapsuckers	Any tanagers
Virginia Rail	(other than Red-breasted)	Any grosbeaks
Black-necked Stilt	Horned Lark	Lark Sparrow
Lesser Yellowlegs	Any swallows	White-throated Sparrow
Long-billed Curlew	Rock or Winter Wrens	Tri-colored Blackbird
Common Snipe	Common Raven	any orioles
Thayer's Gull	Phainopepla	Lawrence's Goldfinch
Greater Roadrunner	Nashville Warbler

PLUS: any montane species such as: Mountain Chickadee, Red-breasted Nuthatch, Townsend's Solitaire, Varied Thrush, Brown Creeper, Pine Siskin or Cassin's Finch

If you see any of the above or know of any other interesting birds, please let one of the following know:

Joan Lentz (969-4397) joanlentz@cox.net

Karen Bridgers (964-1316) k.bridgers@cox.net

Dave Compton (965-3153) davcompton@verizon.net

Also, this year we have all the Christmas Count forms available for downloading on the Audubon website, which is: <http://www.rain.org/~audubon/> Check it out!

If you need forms mailed to you or have difficulty getting them off the computer, Joan Lentz will be glad to mail them to you. Thanks!

Thanks, Volunteers

by Callie Bowdish

As part of Audubon's end of the year report Santa Barbara Audubon is required to submit a tally of the volunteer hours. This year's tally was over 9,000 hours. This number represents the efforts of many generous people who help with the science, education, habitat restoration, and conservation activities that encompass Audubon's programs.

Audubon board members and committees help to oversee these programs and the administrative needs of Audubon. Darlene Chirman, the Board President, was recognized this year at the Audubon California State Assembly for her years of service and involvement with habitat restoration and conservation. Volunteers on Audubon restoration projects restore native plants in wetland and foothill areas such as the Goleta and Devereux Slough and Arroyo Hondo. Wildlife benefits from the results of these efforts, and people enjoy the beauty of the many improvements. Volunteers also attended public policy meetings and worked with other conservation groups on issues of importance to bird habitat.

520 hours were spent on the Christmas Bird Count. Joan Lentz, Joan Murdoch, Bill Pollock and many others helped to make this a great event. The data collected throughout the United States is a significant contribution to biological research. The long-term Audubon bird data helps to see trends and patterns. Currently Audubon biologists are using it to predict the effect of climate change on bird distribution. Science can contribute to policies that help to protect biodiversity.

The Snowy Plover Program is a collaborative effort with approximately 3,800 hours of volunteer time contributing to its success. Volunteers, Steve Ferry and Ben Shalant, have been regulars down on the beach educating the public and helping with many aspects of the program. Fence maintenance is one of the chores that helps to discourage the disturbance of the Plovers and other shorebirds. A greater understanding of Snowy Plovers, shorebirds, and the dune habitat is a bonus for people who assist Jennifer Stroh, the program director, and Cris Sandoval, the Coal Oil Point Reserve director. Melissa Kelly helped oversee the bird nesting box program and the monitoring of bird island. These are programs that along with the Snowy Plover program help to encourage breeding success and to keep nesting success records.

The Eyes in the Sky (EITS) educational program had over 2,200 hours of volunteer time. Daily bird care and training, fund raising and helping with bringing the birds to events and schools were part of their activities. Meet your Wild Neighbors is part of the education program that delights children and introduces them to the world of birds. John O'Brien and Margo Kenney were constant supporters of this program run by Gabriele Drozdowski and it's many helpers. Julie Kummel the outreach committee chair was one of the many helpers with the first Santa Barbara Audubon auction. This auction raised money toward new housing for the five EITS birds at the Santa Barbara Museum of Natural History. EITS is a wonderful program, and, like all of Audubon programs it needs and depends on volunteers.

Santa Barbara Audubon has two important volunteers that help keep the members informed. Bobbie Offen is the webmaster who posts information on the web that Audubon committee chairs send to her. Andy Lentz is the newsletter editor that fits all the news into a newsletter that Santa Barbara Audubon members receive every other month. Committee chair volunteers for field trips, Jack Sanford, and programs, John O'Brien, announce their well received programs through these venues.

Thanks goes to all the volunteers that together contributed more than 9,000 hours of their precious time to Audubon. Membership and donations to Santa Barbara Audubon help with these programs and volunteers make them possible. There are many ways to get involved, please contact any board members or committee chairs if you would like to be a volunteer.

Enjoy a tour of Coal Oil Point Reserve

Trained tour leaders will take you on a walk through a few of the Reserve's ecosystems from sandy beach to the Devereux Slough to a restored coastal dune system. Learn about the Reserve's current restoration projects and its cultural and geologic history while identifying rare and endangered species, such as the Western Snowy Plover, White Tailed Kite, Ventura Marsh Milkvetch, and the Wandering Skipper butterfly—that make their home at Coal Oil Point.

Tours occur monthly on the first or second Saturday from 9am – 11am and the third Sunday from 3 p.m. – 5 p.m. Tours for school, community or department groups are available by appointment. Tours are free and open to the public.

Registration for tours is required. Please contact Nicole Cerra at (805) 284-8579 or ncerra@gmail.com to register.

THANK YOU, TRIP LEADERS

By Jack Sanford

Audubon wants to acknowledge and thank its trip leaders who generously volunteer their time and expertise to lead our bird walks and field trips. They provide educational outdoor experiences for many novice and advanced birders throughout the year. Many of them have been leading these enjoyable trips for years. We are very grateful to each and every one of them:

All From An Egg The Origins Of The Santa Barbara Museum Of Natural History

Krista Fahy
Associate Curator Vertebrate Zoology

Wednesday, December 5, 2007
(Please note special date)

Do you know which local institution got its start as the Museum of Comparative Oology? Come join Associate Curator Krista Fahy as she reveals the history, secrets and jewels of the Santa Barbara Museum of Natural History's egg collection.

Krista started with the Vertebrate Zoology department in 1994. She currently manages the museum's extensive avian collections and works to provide access to the data held within to researchers and naturalists around the world.

As a doctoral candidate at UCSB, Krista has studied the habitat characteristics and nest preferences of central coast Snowy Plovers. In her lack of free time she enjoys birding, travel and antique natural history art.

Lives and Times of Our Local Woodpeckers

Steve Shunk
Naturalist and Woodpecker Specialist

Wednesday, January 23, 2008

From the western Transverse Ranges north of Santa Barbara to the Laguna Mountains west of Anza Borrego, nine species of woodpeckers hold year-round territories in largely complimentary habitats. Winter brings an influx of flickers and sapsuckers to the region, when some of the resident species wander a bit. Some of Southern California's local woodpecker populations have developed uniquely specialized lifestyles suited to their preferred islands of habitat, and at least one endemic subspecies inhabits the region's pine forests.

Join Oregon naturalist and woodpecker specialist Steve Shunk as he interprets the lives and times of our local woodpeckers. Steve will discuss natural history, adaptation, and hybridization among our resident and migratory woodpecker species, as well as potential identification challenges.

For the last 10 years, Steve has studied woodpeckers on the east slope of Oregon's Cascade Mountains, and he is nearing completion of the Peterson Reference Guide to Woodpeckers of North America. He leads birding tours across western North America through his company, Paradise Birding, and he coordinates bird surveys for various agencies and organizations from his home base in Central Oregon. Steve co-founded the East Cascades Bird Conservancy and served as its first President. He also co-founded the Oregon Birding Trails project and coordinated its flagship project, the Oregon Cascades Birding Trail.

Santa Barbara Audubon Field Trips

Everyone is welcome! These trips are fun for both beginning and expert bird watchers. Binoculars are useful for enjoyment of birds, but if you don't have a pair please call the trip leader and we'll lend you a spare. Trips are free unless noted. Please contact Jack Sanford (805) 566-2191 jacksanford@hotmail.com for details or questions.
