

ANNUAL MEMBERSHIP MEETING

by Betsy Mooney

On June 24, in the quiet dappled sunlight of Stow Grove Park, Area #3, Santa Barbara Audubon members, family, and friends gathered to share birding adventures and good food during our Annual Membership Meeting and Get-together. As in years past, the Glendessary Jam filled the grove with lively old-time music.

Santa Barbara Audubon Society thanked Jan Oetinger for her ten years of effective leadership service in habitat restoration. Jan is moving to Portland, Oregon, and was pleased to receive thoughtful good-bye gifts.

This year not one, but two, Great Horned Owls provided avian entertainment, clearly visible high in a nearby redwood. David Levasheff set up a scope and kept the owls in focus. Members took turns viewing the owls, who seemed uninterested in the human activities below them. The two beautiful raptors preened, fluffed, and dozed.

Voting took place for the election of next year's board members. We're looking forward to another active year of SBAS education, restoration, and advocacy!

MEET YOUR AUDUBON BOARD

A SERIES INTRODUCING THE DIRECTORS OF OUR CHAPTER

Those who attend SBAS programs already know Teresa Fanucchi for her gracious provision of hospitality. Now, she chairs the Programs Committee.

Teresa was born and raised in Bakersfield in an agricultural family. She came to Santa Barbara in 1986 to pursue a college degree, studying anthropology and environmental studies, and graduated with a BA in 1991.

She first became involved with the Audubon Society in 2001, shortly after moving to Sonoma County, where she knew no one. "Looking back, it was birding – walking slowly around beautiful, unfamiliar areas, getting to know the native birds with a group of friendly locals – that most helped me feel at home in a new place."

Teresa moved back to Santa Barbara in 2004. Her active involvement in Santa Barbara Audubon started when, in 2010, she saw an article in ET calling for volunteers to handle the Eyes in the Sky raptors. She knew she had to give it a try, and she's been enjoying it ever since.

As Programs Chair her main responsibility will be organizing and hosting the monthly programs. Teresa brings her work experience in event planning, at both UCSB Orientation Programs and La Casa de Maria's conference office, to her new position. She looks forward to serving the SBAS community by bringing interesting programs to its members, and she welcomes suggestions and feedback.

SBAS HELPS GOLETA FAMILY SCHOOL

by Heather Severson

Last May, SBAS lent 10 pairs of binoculars to Goleta Family School for their science camp on Santa Cruz Island with a focus on birds.

A UCSB bird researcher gave a talk on Song Sparrows, and the kids got to see one up close. They also viewed the Island Scrub Jay, Acorn Woodpecker, Spotted Towhee, Common Raven, Black Phoebe, California Quail, Allen's Hummingbird, Lesser Goldfinch, and Orange-crowned Warbler. During a night hike, they heard the distinctive call of a Northern Saw-whet Owl. Using our binoculars, they watched a Barn Swallow making a nest in the garage at the UCSB field station.

The highlight of their trip was finding a nest of Black-headed Grosbeaks in a willow tree. The kids said the binoculars were instrumental in finding this nest and being able to see the babies inside it. Goleta Family School was very grateful for our help, and sent us photos so we could see for ourselves how much fun they had!

by Jayne Wamsley, Carol Rae, and Karen Dorfman

SBAS and SBPAL (the Santa Barbara Police Activities League) have completed a second collaborative springtime program of outdoor education for teens. Participants closely observed birds, flowers, and amphibians at various weekly destinations, ending the program with a capstone trip to Santa Cruz Island.

Naturalists and Audubon Board member Aaron Kreisberg educated the teens about local ecological issues and restoration projects. Target birds were identified on each trip, including a Greater Roadrunner at the Carpinteria Salt Marsh. The teens braved high winds at Coal Oil Point Reserve to learn about the Snowy Plover conservation project. At Lake Los Carneros they enthusiastically observed several nestlings when Steve Senesac opened one of SBAS' Tree Swallow nest boxes. On our visit to UCSB's Cheadle Center, Andy Lanes gave us a greenhouse tour and discussed stewardship of local native habitat, noting the scourge of invasive plants and the need for restoration. Thanks to this successful partnership between PAL and SBAS, local teens enjoyed the remarkable diversity of Santa Barbara habitats.

SBAS HAS BEEN SELECTED TO FILL THIS DISPLAY CASE IN THE SANTA BARBARA CENTRAL LIBRARY LOBBY FOR THE MONTH OF OCTOBER. WATCH FOR IT!

NEWS FROM EYES IN THE SKY

RAPTORS ARE MOVING TEMPORARILY!

by Judy Hogan

As the Santa Barbara Museum of Natural History will begin multi-phased renovations shortly after Labor Day, EITS is preparing to move our seven raptors from the aviary in the Museum Back Yard to refurbished enclosures at two private residences for approximately nine months. The raptors will continue to have daily care and exercise from EITS volunteers. You may bump into one or more raptors and handlers, who will spend part of their afternoons in beautiful places like the Botanic Garden, Mission Rose Garden, Rocky Nook Park or Douglas Family Preserve. Whenever you run into a volunteer with a “raptor on the glove,” please introduce yourself and get to know them. They are happy to share stories about our amazing birds of prey.

Each Thursday, Saturday, and Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m., most of the raptors and their handlers will continue to meet Museum visitors under the oak tree near the bridge over Mission Creek.

At a volunteer appreciation brunch, Gabriele recognized Chris Mersey, Richard Nordli, Coni Edick, and John O'Brien for outstanding service

EITS will continue to be available to present programs at schools, public and community events, afterschool programs, youth camps, senior centers, and other places where we are invited. Please call the office to schedule a program date with Gabriele.

EITS continues to be blessed with 45+ active and caring volunteers, who enrich the lives of the raptors under our care and share the joy and wonder of these beautiful birds with the public.

SBAS: PROGRAMS

CLIMATE CHANGE AND US

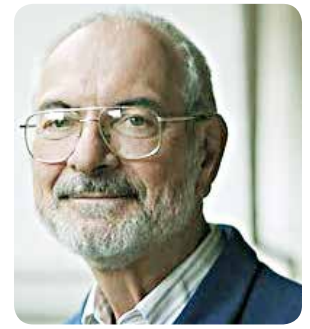

Presented by Karl Hutterer

Wednesday, September 27, 7:30 p.m. (Doors open 7:00 p.m. Join us for refreshments.)

Location: Farrand Hall, Santa Barbara Museum of Natural History

For the past several years, Karl Hutterer has focused his energy on advancing climate change literacy. He will start by summarizing some of the basic facts about climate change: where we currently are in terms of changing climates and their effects, and what experts are predicting. Then he will address what each one of us can do to help our planet to “break the fever”.

Karl Hutterer earned his Ph.D. from the University of Hawaii. He came to Santa Barbara in 2000 to assume the executive directorship of the Santa Barbara Museum of Natural History. Since retiring in 2013, he has volunteered with several nonprofits, and he is currently on the board of directors of the Community Environmental Council of Santa Barbara.

A BIRD'S-EYE VIEW OF SOUTHWEST FLORIDA

Presented by Holly Sherwin

Wednesday, October 25, 7:30 p.m. (Doors open 7:00 p.m. Join us for refreshments.)

Location: Farrand Hall, Santa Barbara Museum of Natural History

Once nothing but swampland and scrubby forests, Southwest Florida has been subject to many environmental challenges. From early plume-hunting days to recent water wars and an ever-increasing human population, the Sunshine State has had to fight to protect its diverse wildlife for over a century. Thanks in part to the National Audubon Society, birds once on the brink of extinction are now protected and can easily be viewed from the Everglades National Park to Ding Darling Wildlife Refuge, through the 10,000 Islands and into Audubon's own Corkscrew Swamp Sanctuary. Come enjoy the tales and photos of this remarkably avian-rich corner of the country by educator, writer and guide, Holly Sherwin.

For nearly 10 years Holly worked for the Conservancy of Southwest Florida in Naples, Florida, where she led natural history tours through various local parks and sanctuaries as well as locations in the Florida Keys and Caribbean Islands. She has since migrated to the shores of Santa Barbara, where she currently resides with her husband and teenage son (but still visits her favorite haunts and secret birding spots in Florida).

SAVING BOLSA CHICA WETLAND

Presented by David and Margaret Carlberg

Wednesday, November 15, 7:30 p.m. (Doors open 7:00 p.m. Join us for refreshments.)

Location: Farrand Hall, Santa Barbara Museum of Natural History

Orange County's 1200-acre Bolsa Chica Wetland is a textbook example of how the perseverance of a group of private citizens can block the destruction of a major ecological resource. Through slides and a video, David and Margaret Carlberg will relate their personal experience in one of the most successful environmental battles in the state's history.

David is a retired California State University, Long Beach, professor, a past president of the Amigos de Bolsa Chica and the author of a history of the Bolsa Chica Wetland. Margaret is a past president of the Orange County Sea and Sage chapter of the Audubon Society and a retired high school chemistry teacher.

The area is so rich in wildlife that our trip there typically counts 80 species including egrets, rails, songbirds, waterfowl, shorebirds, raptors, and more.

For each trip, 14 lucky SBAS members will be granted access to the base. As a bonus, additional local experts normally accompany us on this popular trip.

NBVC Point Mugu is an active Navy base, so your access onto the base must be approved prior to the trip date. U.S. Citizenship and advance submittal of an Access Pass Registration Form are required. NO CAMERAS are allowed on base.
